the General Improvement Commission and Attorney for the Police Board.

The salary paid him as Corporation Counsel is $2,500. The Police Board is credited on the books of the City Treasurer with paying its counsel $500. while $1,000 is appropriated by the Gen ary for its legal adviser.

siand City must be an elector and resident of that city.

These malcontents claim that Mr. Stewart was a resident of New York at the time he received the appointment of Corporation Counsel of Long Island City when he was appointed in City, and that he had not yet moved to Long Island City when he was appointed from Mayor Sanford the appointment of Long Island City when he was appointed from Mayor Sanford the appointment to the two other positions. He is now holding all three. Mr. Stewart appears to have incurred the enmity of Alderman Cassidy's friends because he advised Mayor Sanford on Jan. 1 to demand Cassidy's resignation.

Cassidy was Excise Commissioner, and he took his seat as Alderman from the Second Ward on the let of January. Corporation Counsel Stewart advised Mayor Sanford that Cassidy could not legally hold two offices and draw two salaries from the city at the same rule does not apply to Mr. Stewart.

Another office-holder who is a fortunate possessor of two positions and two salaries, is Henry W. Sharkey. Visitors are received between 12 and 1. After lunch he takes a short nap, and then goes for a drive, says the Australian correspondent of the Westminster Gazette.

Sir Alfred has had a singularly fortunate career. Born in the West indies, the son of a New South Wales Judge, he received his education at the Charterhouse school. In 1825 he emigrated to Tasmania, which was then little more than a receptacle for convicts; he lived there for some time, framing the first laws of the colony, and them was appointed to a vacant Judgeship in New South Wales. He was knighted as far back as 1846.
